Workplace Productivity

We recognise that every organisation has its own unique digital transformation ambitions, requirements and expectations. As a result, our flexible Discovery Service; EUC Consult is a crucial step to understanding your organisation aspirations in regards to workplace productivity.
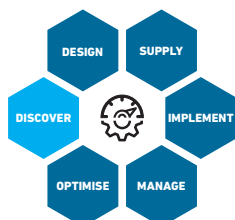

It is essential at this stage of your journey that the alignment of business drivers and your IT strategy is achieved through the analysis of your people, processes and technology.

SCC employs a combination of tools, interviews, workshops and end user surveys to gain a more complete insight into your business, enabling us to provide honest targeted analysis and feedback.

This approach helps us to collaborate with you to identify gaps between ambition and reality, ultimately defining whether a transformation strategy is going to be successful or not.

Using a defined methodology, SCC Consultants can analyse business intelligence from the data collected. This highlights the impact and financial implications of your requirements and how your organisation consumes IT, technology; applications and data in your enterprise.

We then provide you with your unique data set along with a full report and a presentation for the board.
